FOREIGN INFLUENCE. We wish the Banner would try to be at least consistent in its know-nothingism. It fears foreign influence dreadfully-when it finds that such foreign influence cannot be seduced by compliments to the "rich Irish brogue" and "the German accent" to vote for the whig candidate; -- yet we know of no paper whose course seems to be in a greater degree controlled, in matters relating to our own business, by foreign opinions, than the Bon-

Thus, we find in yesterday's Banner a leading article, made up of threatening extracts from English and French papers, telling what those two countries will be likely to do if Uncle Sam doesn't behave himself, and abusing this country generally "like a very drab." The Banner concludes its article in which these extracts are introduced as fol-

"Our object in publishing the foregoing extracts being merely to illustrate the actual state of public feeling in France and England in relation to the course, policy, and what they understand to be the purposes of the United States in regard to matters n which they feel and say they have an interest, we shall not, on the present occasion, undertake to go into any discussion or examination of the propriety and justness of their censures. The fact of the existence of such a degree of exacerbation in the public mind, both in England and France, in regard to this country, whether justified or not by our own conduct; is a thing not to be lightly heeded by those who have the control and management of our public affairs."

So, thou most consistent hater of foreign influence and sympathiner with know-nothingism, the fact that England and France look upon us with jealousy "should not be lightly heeded!" Oh! no! Old federalism and young whiggery has always been ready enough to heed the threatenings of any foreign government, and has never lacked the disposition to pay the most devoted heed to "foreign influence," when it came in such shape! They are ready enough to kick a poor Irishman or German, who has fled from the despotism of his own land for refuge to this, out of the country, or to degrade him to the lowest serfdom if he remains here, and to say that thus they are resisting "foreign influence." But, magnanimous souls! here resistance stops. Let but the tyrant who has banished this Irishman or German shake his finger threateningly at us, and you shall hear the cry of "caution!" raised; and warnings that these threatenings "must not be lightly heeded !"

It has always been so with the anti-democratic party. The country has never been in a contest but what the leaders took sides with the enemy.-In our difficulties with England, with France, and with Mexico, "foreign influence," exerted through the anti-democratic party, was more dangerous to the cause of the country than foreign arms. The old federal party saw the time when it was willing to show to a foreign army a hospitality which it would deny to a poor outcast wanderer, in search of a home in the land of liberty. And a leader of modern whiggery was ready enough to pray for hospitable graves in a foreign land for the soldiers who were fighting the battles of the country. It is only when foreign influence comes to us in the shape of strong hands and brave hearts, to enjoy and to defend with us the blessings of freedom, that it is dreaded by federal-whiggery. Oh, for an infusion of patriotic know-somethingism, to teach this federal-whiggery less dread both of the dictation of foreign cabinets and of the seekers for liberty who yearn for the blessings we enjoy.

It is the work-thank God!-of the brave old DEMOCRATIC PARTY, in the Future as in the Past, not only to stand by the great doctrines of Politi-CAL and RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, but to resist the spirit of coward cringing to the opinions of our policy entertained by the tools of foreign despotisms. This is the dangerous foreign influence of which Washington and Jefferson warned the country. And while the democratic party will do this, and do it in spite of the contrary efforts of federal-whiggery, it will now and forever scout the foul dishonor of proscribing men for their religious belief and of depriving them of sacred constitutional rights.

IS THIS TRUE?

The Banner of yesterday says: "Hon. Wm. Cullon was in this city yesterday on his way to Washington, in good health and buoyant spirits, as any Anti-Nebraska man ought to be considering the result of the late elections.

Is it true that any anti-Nebraska man in the South "ought to be in buoyant spirits at the late elections?" They are pure, unadulterated abolition triumphs! And has it got to this, that the leading whig paper in Tenaessee can declare that such results ought to put any Southern man in buoyant spirits! Think of this, reader, and see the road these Southern whig leaders are going.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM. The know-nothings say that they do not war upon any religion-that they are in favor of religious freedom. Yet, in becoming members of the order, they take a solemn oath not to vote for any man for office of a particular religious belief. The religious freedom allowed by the knownothings is therefore exactly that allowed by the French officer, during Napoleon's time. The question was, shall the First Consul be elected Emperor? "Gentlemen," said the French officer, "you will exercise perfect freedom in this matter, and vote exactly as you please; but any man who votes against Napoleon shall be shot at the head of the regiment."

Exactly this sort of religious freedom is recognised by the know-nothings.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The Legislature of North Carolina commenced its session at Raleigh on the 20th inst. The Senate was organised by the election of WARREN WINstow, of Cumberland county, as Speaker; the vote being, for Wisslow, democrat, 25; for Joseph B. CHERRY, of Berthie, whig, 13. The House was organised by the election of SAMUEL P. HILL, of Caswell, as Speaker; the vote being, for Mr. Hill, 63; for J. S. Awss, of Granville, whig, 45. Parties in the Legislature stand as follows:

ness in its dealings with us. We say then, success to the arms of Russia, and a disaster to the un-holy and unchristian alliance between France, England, Austria, and Turkey! We copy the views expressed within a few days by some of our exchanges: From the New York Mirror.

We have no sympathy with the Soule Sickles order of revolutionists and notority seekers. Still, it is quite evident that European powers, are preparing, beyond interference with our ambassadorial agents, to show their hand against us if occasion shall warrant. ONLY LET FRANCE, ENGLAND, AND AUSTRIA, FIX THE GAME OF RULE IN EUROPE TO THRIR MIND, AND WE SHALL HAVE MORE POINTED INTERFERENCE WITH OUR AFFAIRS THAN THE FORBID-DING OF AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARY DIPLOMATISTS TO CROSS THE SOIL OF FRANCE. England is about to place a naval force of nearly four hundred guns in the West Indian waters-a part of the force being there already.

In regard to the Eastern War, there is no-question as to whose ally the United States should be The humiliation of Russia will expose us to a conflict with her enemies. The triumph of Russia will be to our benefit.

From the New York Times. But however all this may be, the most serious consideration is, the numerous givings out in England and France, that after they shall have succeeded in imposing their own passions, interests or policy upon Europe, they mean to undertake the same thing with regard to America. Lord Clarendon distinctly proclaimed this; and the London Times, only a few weeks ago, in an evidently semi-official article, assured us that nothing could be easier than to send the allied flects over here to bombard and garrison some of our seacoast cities; and we were contemptously advised to come to our senses, and be frightened out of our designs upon Cuba, in view of the awful peril thus impending Under such circumstances, how is it possible to expect that the people of the United States should oin with England and France, in the ringing of bells and the firing of salutes, upon the arrival of intelligence, true or false, that the allies-after exhausting all the resources of science, art, intellect and courage, for that purpose-have succeeded in accom hishing the philanthropic object of shooting or stabbing forty or fifty thousand Russians in the the United States?

It is to be hoped these apprehensions, which are more or less current, may prove to be ill-founded .-The fact, however, is undeniable, that how muchsoever, if at all, England and France may have cause to apprehend the ambition of Russia, we in the United States have much more cause to apprehend the ambition of England and France, who in late years. have exhibited so much proclivity to intermeddle in the affaits of America.

> (From the Lincoln Journal.) HON, G. W. JONES.

Mr. Jones left home on last Monday for the seat of government via. the Southern route. His many personal friends in Washington will be pleased see him in the enjoyment of excellent health and able to undergo the duties of the most arduous session. In this connection it may be proper for us to state, that, in answer to the interrogatory of many friends before leaving home as to whether he would be a candidate for re-election, we understand Mr. Jones has uniformly said that he expected to be a candidate at the proper time, unless comething should intervene to satisfy him that a majority of the district desire some other gentleman to represent them, in that event he will not obtrude his name upon them. Mr. Jones, at the close of his present term, will ave been fourteen years in Congress, how faithfully and satisfactorily to his constituents, the inreased vote received at every succeeding election

We risk nothing in making the assertion, that no man has applied himself more exclusively to his public duties, or enjoyed a more unbounded conidence from his constituents, than Mr. Jones,-and we venture to say, at no time during his long ca reer, has the service of men of known patriotism, unbending integrity, and sound discriminating udgment, been more required than in the next ngress-and at no time have the people of this district, so far as we have any information, expressed a greater desire to retain Mr. Jones in Congress, than in the next. But our readers are well aware of all this and we need not amplify upon the subject further at present.

[Written for the Dollar Newspaper-Philadelphia.] WINTER BUTTER.

In many parts of our country, the art of making good butter in winter time is very imperfectly understood, and, by some dairy women, thought to be entirely impossible. But it can be done in December as well as May. The plan of doing it is this : The cows should be stabled and fed on sweet hay and other provender. Instead of keeping the milk in a warm place, it should be put in a cold one, and no matter how soon it freezes, because freezing will separate the cream much more perfectly than it will rise without this atmospheric temperature, and it can then be taken off with less trouble. And when the cream is churned the churn should not be placed very near a fire; the ordinary heat of a kitchen will be sufficient. Too much warmth destroys both the complexion and the flavor of butter. In the winter, butter, it is evident, requires more time in churning than in summer, but when patience assists the laborer, the task is made no task

Butter cured with half an ounce of salt; quarter ounce of saltpetre; quarter ounce of moist sugar pounded, used in the proportion of an ounce to each pound of butter, will be found to keep good a longer time, and have a more delicious flavor than when salted in the ordinary way. COLOR-COMPLEXION-A STUDY FOR LADIES, RED DRAPERY .- Rose-red cannot be put in conact with the rosiest complexions without causing them to lose some of their freshness. Dark-red is less objectionable for certain complexions than those rose-red, because, being higher than this latter, it tends to impart whiteness to them in consequence of contrast of tone. GREEN DRAPERY .-- A delicate green is, on the contrary, favorable to all fair complexions which are ficient in rose, and which may have more imparted to them without inconvenience. But it is not as favorable to complexions that are more red than rosy, nor to those that have a tint of orange mixed with brown, because the red they add to this tint will be of a brick-red hue. In the latter case a dark green will be less objectionable than a delicate green.

Yellow Draffery. -- Yellow imparts violet to a fair skin, and in this view it is less favorable than the delicate green. To those skins which are more vellow than orange, it imparts white; but this combination is very dull and heavy for a fair complexion. When the skin is tinted more with orange than yellow, we can make it reseate by neutralizing the yellow. It produced this effect upon the black haired type, and it is thus that it suits brunettes. VIOLET DRAPERIES .- Violet, the complimentary of yellow, produces contrary effects; thus it imparts some greenish yellow to fair complexions.-It augments the yellow-tint of yellow and organge skins. The little blue there may be in a complexion it makes green. Violet, then, is one of the least favorable colors to the skin, at least, when it is not sufficiently deep to whiten it by contrast of BLUE DRAPERY .- Blue imparts orange, which is susceptible of allying itself favorable to white and the light flesh tint of fair complexions, which have already a more or less determined tint of this col-Blue is then, suitable to most blondes, and in this case justifies its reputation. It will not suit brunettes, since they have already too much of the ORANGE DRAPERY .- Orange is too brilliant to be legant; it makes fair complexions blue, whitens nose which have an orange tint, and gives a green me to those of a vellow unt.

WHITE DRAPERY.-Drapery of a lustreless white, such as a cambric muslin, assorts well with a fresh complexion, of which it relieves the rose color; but t is unsuitable to complexions which have a disareeable tint, because white always exalts all colers by raising their tone, consequently it is unsuitable to those skins which, without having that disagreeable tint, very nearly approach it. Very light white draperies, such as muslin, plaited or point lace have and entirely different aspect. BLACK DRAPERIES.—Black Draperies, lowering the tone of the colors with which they are in juxtaposition, whiten the skin; but if the vermillion or rosy parts are to a certain point distant from the drapery, it will follow that, although lowered in tone, they appear relatively to the white parts of the skin contiguous to this same drapery, redder than if the contiguity to the black did not exist. THE GOOD OLD TIMES IN VIRGINIA. Under this head, "J. A. Y." a correspondent of the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, tells two or three very good stories, one of which was the following: In those days lived old Ned Carey. Every one living here then recollected Old Ned-a frolicking old free darkey, who never let a muster, a cock fight or a race pass without being on hand, if possible. Joined to old Ned's inordinate love of such sport was what is now-adays termed by the business part of mankind a great deal of cuteness, but was in fact something less creditable. On a certain day a great muster was to come off at some tavern in the county of Henrico, and of course a cock fight or two. At the appointed time a great many persons were present, and among them Mr. M., a gentleman of the real old stripe, who had made a few ten dollar bets on the cock fights, and lost every one. He was commenting on his bad luck, when old Ned was seen approaching with a large bag thrown over his shoulder. "Hallo, Ned, what have you there?" "Fast rate cock, Massa M."

"Game, Ned?" "Oh, yes, game as a panter, Massa M." "Out with him, Ned; out with him." And Ned drew forth a large speckled cock, which to judge by its size, was a perfect bruiser. "What's the price, Ned?"

"Five dollars, Massa, an' cheap at dat; an' if any cock on dis ground kill dis cock, I gin you back de The bargain was accordingly struck and the match made for a fight right away. M bet about the amount he had already lost, and the cocks were put in the ring. At the first touch of the steel, Old Ned's cock gave a most awful squall, and took a strong wind or the woods. M. was furious, while the crowd laughed-fairly screamed at the enjoyment of the fun. Old Ned was accordingly hauled up, with the application of some pretty hard epithets. Didn't I tell you, Massa M." says Ned, "if dis cock here kill dat cock I give you back de five dollars? But dey kotch him fus; an' I never seen any cock out run old Skewball in my life. Ya! ya!" M. wanted to be very angry, but it was no go; his anger was choked down by the uproarious laughter of the crowd that met him on every side, and he was forced to enjoy it as a capital joke. Old Ned continued to frequent the race course till his

BANCROFT'S HISTORY

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES DISCOVERY OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT.

BY HON, GEORGE BANCROFT,

IN 6 VOLS, SVO. CLOTH, VOLUME VI. JUST PUBLISHED, Completing the History of the Revolution, CONSIDERED IN ITS CAUSES.

"This volume (8) covers the period of eight years between the repect of the Stamp Act, 1788, and the Penal Measures toward Boston, 1774, and complete the three volumes de-voted to the causes of the Revolution. Comment with regard to the value, or the interest of such a book from such a source, is unnecessary.—Bangor Sournal.

"The study of Bancroft should be insisted on as equally the duty and privilege of every American. His history should fill a place in every house second only to the Bible. In no other way can the rising generation be so ably instructed in all that pertains to the rise of our free institutions, or become inductrinated in the principles of genuine American republicanism. Bancroft has traced the progress of events in America with an ability nowise inferior to that displayed by Macaulay in his History of England. His dedisplayed by Macaulay in his History of England. His deineation of character and portraiture of great tren rival the fluest specimens of Macaulay, the greatest master of this species of composition in our time. Besides, Baneroft has the advantage of being more impartial. For power of condensed statement, we doubt if he has his equal among living historians. His pages also teem with life, so vigorous is the dramatic force of his genius, But, enough, It is a work which every man should read."—Aspassa Age.
